Premiere To Benefit G-W Student Aid

Proceeds of the Feb. 14 world premiere of the new Johnny Cash film "Gospel Road" will go to Gardner-Webb's Annual Fund, and through it, directly to student aid.

Cash has requested that Gardner-Webb sponsor the premiere, to be held at the Charlotte, N. C., Southpark Cinema I, and use the proceeds to financially assist worthy students in securing a Christian education.

The film, subtitled "A Story of Jesus Told In Song By Johnny Cash," was produced by the famed musician and singer himself and was filmed in the Holy Land. It is narrated by Cash and stars his wife, June Carter Cash, as Mary Magdalene, and Robert Elstree as Jesus Christ. It is a simple, benevolent portrayal of the life of Christ, shot in music and drama. Twentieth Century Fox is handling commercial distribution of the film, which will begin runs in movie theaters after the premiere.

Cash and his wife will be in Charlotte for the premiere, and plan to introduce the film and present their own Christian testimony.

Gardner-Webb conferred an honorary doctor's degree upon Cash several months ago in recognition of his humanitarian efforts in such fields as penal reform, prisoner rehabilitation and drug abuse prevention.

College President E. Eugene Foster was invited to Nashville, Tenn., last October to see a private preview of the film for friends and associates.

Cash's request that G-W be allowed to sponsor the premiere followed. He stated his belief in the college's purpose of Christian education and his desire to help students in their quest for it.

The student aid fund is allocated on the basis of need. Among other purposes, benefit proceeds can provide an alternate aid source for students who did not receive as much assistance this year as expected from the National Direct Student Loan fund program, which has been cut back.

Tickets for the premiere were not being sold, although friends of the college were being asked to be sponsors of the event with contributions to the student aid fund.

JOHNNY CASH is shown as he received an honorary doctorate on the G-W campus.

College Boards Elect Officers

Gardner-Webb College's Board of Trustees and its Board of Advisors elected new officers in late November meetings.

Scruggs To Appear

Gardner-Webb's student aid fund will benefit from a performance by another famous entertainer in February.

Earl Scruggs, a Cleveland County native and brother of Bebe Scruggs, superintendent of G-W's buildings and grounds, will appear in campus concert at 8:30 p.m. Feb. 19 in Best Gym.

The show will feature the satirist and the Earl Scruggs Revue, in a program uniquely combining rock, spiritual, country and western music.

The public is invited and all proceeds will go directly to the G-W student aid fund.

General admission and reserved seat tickets will be available at the door for $3 and $4. Advance tickets can be secured for $2 and $3. Contact the student office for information.

Scruggs, renowned for his three-finger banjo picking style, has remained close to his native community and has long held a deep interest in G-W's programs.

HAPPY BULLDOGS AFTER HOLIDAY TOURNAMENT

Young Team Compiles Good Record

Despite the fact that the Gardner-Webb basketball team is the youngest in the senior college history of the school, it has already compiled a record of 16 wins and four losses, including a holiday tournament title.

Coach Eddie Holbrook normally starts one senior, two sophomores and two freshmen in each game. It was this line up which captured the seventh annual holiday tournament. The young Bulldogs scored an upset 65-59 win over Carson-Newman in the first game and then came roaring back the next night to whip Western Carolina 86-71.

This was the first time since Gardner-Webb became a senior college that the Bulldogs have won their own tournament. The Carson-Newman team came to Boiling Springs with a 9-3 record as it fell to the Bulldogs in the open-other Bulldog wins have come over Livingstone, UNC-Asheville, Western Carolina, Pfeiffer, Ky., Tennessee Wesleyan, Shaw University, St. Augustine and Aiken University. Gardner-Webb has lost games to Belmont Abbey, Catawba, Lenoir Rhyne and Carson-Newman.

Two youngsters, freshman John Drew and sophomore Jim Blanks, are leading the Bulldog scoring race. Blanks is averaging 26 points per game and Drew is pumping the nets at 28 points per outing.

January and February are the big months for the Bulldogs, highlighted by a six day trip to Hawaii at the end of January. Also included in the final games are some important tilts in the Charlotte Coliseum with Gardner and UNC-Asheville.

Reading Help

The importance of reading skills has been given added dimension for Gardner-Webb College students. A new course, Communications 101, was added to the curriculum for the academic year.

The purpose of this course is to help the students with a reading problem which is great enough to restrict or interfere with his learning at Gardner-Webb. Only students identified as having reading problems are accepted for this course.

The course is structured to give individual help to each student. Participants are tested to determine strengths and weaknesses. Specific weaknesses in word recognition, comprehension, and study skills will be dealt with.

The course is under the direction of a reading expert, Dr. D. Ralph Schuckraft. He is an associate professor of education at Gardner-Webb. Before coming to Gardner-Webb in last summer he was a member of the Miami-Dade Junior College education faculty. In one semester at Miami-Dade, 2,400 students were enrolled in this same course of instruction that is being offered at Gardner-Webb.
